

MONDAY, JANUARY 2, 8 A.M.

As we intend, after the first of January, to earn out the delivery of the Daily Journal, we request those who, from a change of carriage, will fail to get their papers, to inform us, and we will have them put in the hands of those who will leave them.

CARRIERS' ANNOUNCEMENT.—The carriers of the Journal will visit their patrons with New-Year's Address to-day—one in the morning and another in the evening. When all are giving themselves up to enjoyment, the services of the faithful carrier should not be forgotten. Each address from the post office and each paper have been printed with excellent care. The engraving design is beautiful—an angel with outspread wings reciting upon bolls of air, holding in her hands a blank volume, open at the first page and ready to receive upon each spotless leaf the impression of Time. A flood of golden sunbeams streams from above, lighting up the whole, and completing the picture.

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.—Our City Sensors—On and after January 1, 1865, J. W. Shattuck will have the compilation and delivery of the Journal from the west side of Third street to the west side of tenth street, and J. H. Hart from the east side of Third street to Shady street. All of our old subscribers, we hope, will continue patrons of the Journal, and as many new ones as feel inclined, as they can now become subscribers for a week or the year, as they may choose. Misses Shattuck and Hart will canvass the city, in their respective districts, and we bespeak for them a kind reception.

After the 1st of January they will collect for subscriptions, weekly or monthly, as may be agreed upon.

A GUERRILLA FIGHT AT HARRISBURG.—THE ORDNANCE HOUSE.—THE TROOPS ARRIVED AND SAWED DOWN.—At an early hour last Wednesday morning, Captain Basham, at the head of a gang of twenty guerrillas, dashed into Harrisburg, Pa., taking the citizen by surprise. The rebels surrounded the court-house, tore down the Union flag, and took possession of the armory, carrying them into the street, and applying the torch to the building and adjacent houses. By this time a few citizens collected in the vicinity, with arms in their hands, and commenced firing upon the scoundrels. This proceeding emboldened other citizens, and nearly the entire fighting strength of the town attacked the rebels with a vim, rousing them and driving them from the place. Two of the men were killed and two wounded. The rebels were left upon the field, the latter revenged by their comrades. One of them was so badly wounded that Basham, a short distance from the town, passed a horse and teams to transport him to a place of safety. The rebels were exulting by the flight of the gallant gentlemen, and Major Moore, Battenberg, and J. G. Phister, a committee to correspond with similar committees at other places, touching the matter under consideration.

On motion, the meeting adjourned. L. J. BATTENBERG, Chairman. W. G. Morris, Secretary.

From the FRONT.—The Nashville Union of Saturday has late intelligence which enables it to locate nearly every position of Hood's army, and to give the reader some idea of the difficulties he will be called upon to encounter in his march to the sea. The rebels have sent a general order to all their corps to be on the alert, and the headquarters' clerks, it appears, have been infected with the notion that an indulged general is a good general, and that their master and their way lie into the hands of speculators. When the excess of stock thus made becomes reduced, manufacturing will be resumed in proportion to the reduction of the tax, and the tax will then produce a larger revenue than the amount, whence, until now, the increased rate of taxation.

General Butler, the commanding general of the Western Department, has issued a large meeting of tobacco manufacturers, in New York, we have seen nothing that convinces us of the policy and propriety of taxing leaf tobacco. It would cause unnecessary expense, and would be a burden to the consumer; by forcing them to supply their wants in some place, and they would, in opening the tobacco offices, find such as not suitable to their purpose, and in which the tax had been paid.

BUTLER.—The rebels have collected since the 1st of January a revenue equal to the consequence of the long agitation in Congress of late, which started manufacturing far ahead of demand, and which has been continued by the speculators. When the excess of stock thus made becomes reduced, manufacturing will be resumed in proportion to the reduction of the tax, and the tax will then produce a larger revenue than the amount, whence, until now, the increased rate of taxation.

BRITAIN'S CONFIDENTIAL STATES FORUM, KY.—HARRISONVILLE, KY., Dec. 10, 1864.

Special Order No.—

BY BRIGADIER-General LYON, commanding Department Western Kentucky, a resolution having been passed by the General Assembly of the State, to prohibit the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors, and the moral complexion it will not improve the condition of the people in this vicinity, and the financial ability of the State.

The Colonels commanding defines Union men to consist of that class of citizens who are ready to defend their country, and to give their services to the cause of the Union, and who have steadily labored against the successful efforts of the rebels to subvert the Government.

These citizens who have given material support to the Federal Government in its heroic prosecution of the war are expected to bear the brunt of the tax.

Notice having been given of the assessment, Union men, failing to comply with the order, to the best of my knowledge, will be liable to punishment.

LIEUTENANT J. E. HANKIN, Chaplain Quartermaster Department Western Kentucky, charged with the execution of this order. He will appear before the General Court martial, to be held at Lexington, on the 1st instant, to give account of his conduct.

Order of Colonel J. QUILBERT CHEWELL, commanding.

D. L. THORNTON, A. A. General.

A GUIDE TO THE WEST.—On Saturday, December 24th, says The Journal, a detachment from Company C, 12th, and E, 124th, United States cavalry, to Henderon, a town of great importance, the detachment numbered 120 men, and was under command of Captains J. M. Ringer and J. M. Morgan. The party was under command of Lieutenant Col. Green, just commandant of Henderon. The effect of the commandants was to ascertain what the rebels forces under Lyon and associates were doing. At Corbin the party discovered a Captain of the rebel army, who seemed to be on his way to a conference with a general in that vicinity. In a skirmish with one companion he was captured without committing any act.

At Slatersburg the party arrived at 12 m. Henderon into an unbroken line and were met on four of the party remaining right wing. As soon as it was ascertained who were the rebels and their location, the back line joined in and cleared them out to short order. The rebels were pursued some distance, but being well mounted, managed to escape. One of the rebels was captured, the rest were, as is usual, scattered over the floor.
